

INSTRUCTIONAL STAFF

Matt, our full-time instructor & technician has been diving since 1997 and teaching since 2001. Since leaving school in 1999 he has become a career diver across the industry. Working in the shop, workshop, teaching and commercial scallop diving. He has built up experience of over 15,500 dives, spending over 6,000 hours on the boat in the last 8 years and is qualified to teach a broad range of courses including "Technical" diving and First Aid.

Matt recently completed advanced training and a 100m dive with depth record holder Mark Ellyatt in Aqaba, Jordan and Dorothea Quarry.

We also have several Dive Masters that help out on the courses and general diving, they are very experienced divers in line with our ethos and offer great help to students and instructors alike.

At Dive Guernsey, diving is our first priority above all else.

This starts with the training we provide to our divers.

We believe in quality, rather than quantity when it comes to training. Aiming to provide lots of opportunity for experience and will recommend continuing education only when we feel the student will benefit from it. We will never push people to sign up for the next course only to take their money.

Course prices include all manuals and certification costs unless otherwise stated. Try-dives include all equipment. Open Water courses include all equipment except Mask, Snorkel and Boots - Personal items that we just don't think people should share for comfort and hygiene reasons.

All courses are "performance based" which means there is no strict schedule / times. The student moves to the next step only when ready. We never teach "the bare minimum" for the course and will stay in the water until it's time to finish the dive. Not just when we have completed the required skills.

To find out more information, or sign up for a course. Please pop into the shop or arrange to meet up via the contact info in this booklet.
